My name is Kevin but my sister calls me Buster. Her name is Joan.
It seems like trouble can find Joan no matter where she is.

Last summer we went swimming at the lake. Joan ran around trying to catch grasshoppers. She never expected to get stung by a bee!

"OUCH! Buster! Get that bad grasshopper!" yelled Joan. I rubbed butter on her hand and explained to her about bees and stingers.

Another time we ate ice cream at Uncle Frank's house. When Joan tried to go outside, she let Uncle Frank's dog in. Joan yelled, "Buster! It's my ice cream. Help!"

Last night, Mom and Dad went to a dinner party. I let the babysitter know that she must keep a close eye on Joan.

The sitter cleaned up the glass, and I wiped up the perfume with water. Joan took a bath, but she still smelled awful.
